CIVIL COURT IS IN SESSION.

First Since the March Term Was Opened This Morning.

JUNE AND SEPTEMBER CASES

Which Were Continued Will Now Be Taken Up—Some of the Suits That Go Over and Those That are Scheduled for Trial.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Oct. 3.—The first term of civil court since the March term was opened this morning at 10 o'clock by Court Crier Charles M. Fee, with 65 traverse jurors in attendance.

Owing to the fact that all cases scheduled for today and tomorrow were continued, all jurors but 12 were excused until Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock.

Both the June and September terms of civil court were continued on motion of the attorneys at the bar, because of the warm weather and vacations which many were taking at that time.

One hundred and five cases are on the trial list for the coming three weeks of this court, but the list has already been greatly reduced, and in all probability not one-third of them will be tried.

Arguments For Continuance.

In the case of George E. Fretts against Mary Newichanic, the plaintiff today filed a bond for $1000, with W. S. Frank as surety. Fretts has obtained a writ of replevin against Mary for possession of one five year old, dehorned, partly Jersey cow, fawn colored, with white spots; value $45. The condition of the obligation is such that if Fretts fails to maintain his title to the property, which he claims is unjustly and fraudulently detained by the defendant, he shall pay her the value of the cow and all costs.

Arguments for continuance were heard, following the calling of the trial list. Attorney D. M. Hertzog, for the defense, asked for a continuance in the case of L. J. Honzo against the Masontown Glass Company. This suit in assumpsit is over a note, and was tried in 1908. A verdict in favor of the plaintiff was returned June 8th, 1908, and a new trial granted. Since then it has been continued from time to time, on each occasion Mr. Honzo bringing two witnesses to Uniontown from Ohio. Because of this his attorney W. E. Crow asked that it be continued to the foot of the list in the hopes of securing a trial at this term. Hertzog gave as his reason, the serious illness of Attorney E. C. Higbee's father. Higbee is his partner in counsel for the defense. The case was continued to the week beginning October 17th.

For a like reason the other seven cases set for trial today were left standing for the present. They were all suits in assumpsit against Herman M. Kephart, administrator of the estate of the late Bertha M. Smith, of Connellsville. Sterling, Higbee and Matthews and D. M. Hertzog represented the defense. The plaintiffs are: Rachel A. Fee, Amelia Donovan, Agnes A. Smith, John B. Skinner, R. C. Greenland, A. A. Straub and Lon Holliday.

For tomorrow nine cases had been scheduled for trial, three of which are suits in replevin against the Smith estate, the plaintiffs being: A. A. Straub and Sherrick, A. A. Straub and Frank Butano. These were continued to the foot of the list.

The case of Jennie L. Thompson in assumpsit against Alexander D. Morton of Connellsville, was continued on motion of Attorney R. P. Kennedy for the defense. He said Mr. Morton had been very sick since last Friday with lumbago.

Margaret Aldridge's case against the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, a suit in assumpsit entered several years ago but continued from time to time, was continued until Friday.

The remaining four cases were continued, namely: Elizabeth S. Moore against Naomi Coal Company, ejectment; Thomas P. Jones, trustee against William C. McCormick, trespass; Enoch Daugherty against Benjamin Daugherty, ejectment; Jesse M. Tressler et ux against West Penn Electric Company, trespass. Only two out of the nine cases called are for trial on Wednesday; David Queer against the Citizens Water Company of Scottdale, trespass; John G. White against Harriet Cunningham, appeal by defendant.

Since the former is the first case on the entire list to be taken up, a jury was called this morning in order they may go to Scottdale tomorrow and view the property. They will leave Uniontown on the Pennsylvania railroad at 2.28 Tuesday afternoon. This action has been brought to secure damages claimed to have been caused by the bursting of a dam, in Bullskin township. Damages to the amount of $5,000 was asked.

Cases that will be for trial on Thursday, the last day of court this week are: Jennie Teggert against John Dean, ejectment; Basil B. Brownfield, assumpsit; East Liverpool Baseball Club against William C. McCormick, assumpsit; Munson Brothers against R. A. Hamilton, appeal by defendant; Stratton Lewis & Company against the Penn Bridge Company, assumpsit.

Miner Killed in an Accident At Adelaide Works on Saturday.

As the result of an accident in the mines at Adelaide on Saturday afternoon one man and two horses were killed, one man was seriously injured and about 20 others had narrow escapes from death. Isadore Horoba, aged about 21 years, was almost instantly killed and Robert Beatty sustained a compound fracture of the femur and several fractured ribs. Beatty was removed to the Cottage State hospital and was resting easy today at noon.

Horoba and Beatty with 20 other men were taking cars out of the mine when they lost control of them and the cars sped back down the track catching the two horses and Horoba terribly crushing them. Beatty, who was riding on the car was thrown from the car, and had a miraculous escape. The other men jumped and escaped serious injuries. The accident caused quite an excitement in the little town of Adelaide, as at first it was reported that more men had been killed.

Coroner Harry J. Bell was notified of the accident. Horoba was well known in Adelaide and was well liked. He had been married only four months. Beatty formerly resided at Leisenring No. 1 and was 44 years old.

Evidence Was Lacking.

Mrs. Laura Belle McCormick, arrested Saturday evening on a warrant for being disorderly on Pittsburg street the evening previous, was discharged for lack of evidence at a hearing yesterday morning. She denied the allegations.

Fall Weather Felt Fine in Town Yesterday

Weather typical of the autumnal season has prevailed for the past 48 hours. In many respects the weather has been ideal. The air is crisp and cool while the sun has shone brightly with scarcely a cloud in the sky. Yesterday was one of the finest Sabbaths, from the viewpoint of the weather, that has prevailed for a long time. The temperature was just about right. In the morning the record was 55 degrees and in the afternoon 65. There was scarcely any wind, aside from a cool, pleasant breeze. The weather appealed particularly to pedestrians; those who took long jaunts into the country. It was the kind of day that one could walk almost any distance without becoming overheated.

This morning the temperature was 50 and the day about the same as yesterday. The river is very low. Last evening it was 0.37 and this morning 0.40.

Sundown Today Jewish New Year Will Commence

The Jews of the world this evening will begin the observance of the Jewish New Year. The solemn service will open this evening with the "Minhah" or evening prayer. This holiday is only exceeded in importance by the Fast Day, or Yom Kippur, which comes ten days hence.

Tomorrow morning the congregations will repair to their synagogues where the services of the New York or "Rosh Hashunah" will be conducted. During the progress of the service the ram's horn, or "shofar," will be blown, a call for the dead to intercede for the living. This year the Day of Atonement will be observed October 13.

Dynamite Found Near Brewery in Los Angeles

United Press Telegram.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 3.—The police announced today that Willis Jordan, a negro, had found four pound sticks of dynamite and a box of explosive caps near the Maier brewery.

The plant had recently repeatedly been threatened with dynamite. The police have not announced their suspicions in connection with The Times explosion.

MILLIONAIRE MURDERED.

Theatrical Man Alleged He was Too Friendly With Wife.

VINCENNES, Ind., Oct. 3.—(Special.)—C. Edwards Gibson, a millionaire oil operator, was murdered by Monte Moore, owner of a string of Indiana theatres, in the Union Station today.

Moore alleged that Gibson had been too attentive to his wife.

McCutcheon Will Filed.

UNIONTOWN, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—The will of Irving McCutcheon, who died in Connellsville September 27, was admitted to probate this morning. The entire estate, valued at $4,500, is left to the wife, Rhenbertha McCutcheon, who is named executrix.

Suit of Clothes Did Not Fit so Suit is Started

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Oct. 3.—A suit of clothes that did not fit is the cause of a suit being entered by Lucartha Nicholson against Jacob Kinsbursky and Mrs. Samuel Kinsbursky of Connellsville, proprietors of The Bazaar.

In the plaintiff's affidavit of claim, filed this morning by Attorney H. G. May, it is claimed that she purchased a suit of clothes on February 1, 1910, paying $9.85, upon the express condition that if the suit did not fit, she was to return it and the defendant was to return the purchase money.

The clothes are alleged to have been a misfit and the plaintiff offered to return them. She demanded the money paid therefor, but the defendants refused to accept the clothes or to return the money.

Hearst Making Trouble for the N. Y. Politicians

United Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—It is certain today that New York politics will be complicated by William R. Hearst either endorsing the Republican ticket and aiding Roosevelt or making an entire independent ticket to attract votes from the Democratic candidates.

The leading first page stories and editorials in the Hearst organs assail the Rochester ticket, labeling it "Murphy's making," and insisting it is a part of Tammany's plan to control all the cities of the State.

FELL FROM CAR.

William McDermott Drops From Iron Bridge and is Badly Hurt.

MT. PLEASANT, Oct. 3.—(Special.) William McDermott fell off a northbound street car last Saturday night at 7 o'clock while crossing the Iron Bridge and received serious injuries. He was on the rear end of the car and must have lost his balance and fell about 25 feet. He was brought to the local hospital unconscious. One of his legs is broken and he is thought to have been suffering from internal injuries. McDermott is about 65 years old and is employed as day watchman at the Bryce Brothers' glass factory.

KERN GETS COMMISSION.

Governor Names Him Justice of Peace to Succeed Leslie Brown.

The commission of S. S. Kern as Justice of the Peace in Connellsville township, succeeding the late Leslie Brown, has been received in Uniontown and Mr. Kern went there this morning to be sworn in.

Mr. Kern was a Justice of the Peace prior to the election of Leslie Brown. Frank Pierce was not a candidate for the office, as was stated in a local paper Saturday.

Jack Took a Tumble.

Jack Gorley succumbed to a week-old jag this morning and had a collapse on Water street. He sustained a painful cut over his left eye. Quite a crowd assembled. Jack was carried into the City Hall where Dr. E. C. Sherrick dressed the injury. He was taken to the hospital where it was found he had sustained a slight concussion of the brain.

Wilbur Blasey's Funeral.

The funeral of George Wilbur Blasey small son of Mr. and Mrs. George Blasey will take place this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the family residence at Leisenring No. 1. Interment in Hill Grove cemetery.

Only Eight Arrests.

Behavior in Uniontown Saturday night and Sunday was fairly good, only eight arrests being made. Five left forfeits and the rest served 24 hours.

HEAVY SENTENCE FOR ALBERT BEAL.

Goes to Penitentiary Eight Years for Various Thefts.

WAS SENTENCED LAST WEEK

To a Term in the Work House But This Was Revoked this Morning. Six Victims of Beal's Operations Made Information Against Him.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Oct. 3.—Albert Beal, who was sentenced last week along with Henry Harvey to 2½ years to the work house, will not have such an easy time of it, after all. This morning he was recalled, the original sentence revoked, and a dose of eight years to the penitentiary given him.

The charges against Beal for larceny and receiving stolen goods were preferred in the following cases:

N. M. Scott, Dunbar, clothing and other articles to the value of $100 on November 2, 1907; A. W. Smith, Dunbar, butter and meat from the Dunbar Fire Brick Company's store, May 18, 1908; Grait Myers, fishing tackle, guns, revolvers, etc., to the value of $60, April 30, 1908; Augustine Minnati, Dunbar township, watches and revolvers to value of $100, January 18, 1908, and C. E. Gaddis, shoes, etc., from United Fire Brick Company's store to value of $25, May 18, 1908; Max Cohen, Uniontown, revolvers and cartridges, to value of $150, January 18, 1908.

One information charging and breaking and entering was made by County Detective Frank McLaughlin.

On the informations of Scott, Minnati and Gaddis, a sentence of two years each was passed, making six years in all, with two years each, to run concurrently, for the informations of Cohen, Smith and Myers.

PRECIPES FILED.

Judgment is Asked in Two Suits at Uniontown.

UNIONTOWN, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—Precipes for judgment were filed Saturday afternoon in the cases of Lester L. Blaney, now for the use of Winfield S. Blaney against Sallie S. Blaney of Uniontown, and the Whyel Coke Company, against Ignatz and Edward Polak, with notice to John Krevonyak terre tenant.

The first suit is over a mortgage executed May 2, 1908, to secure the payment of $4,000, without interest, including the attorney's fees; the amount now claimed due is $4,155.

The Whyel company claims $3,789.01 including attorney's commission. On April 1, 1907, the defendants executed and delivered to the plaintiffs a bond to secure the payment of the sum of $3,750.

In both cases, provisions were made that in case default was made in payment of principal or installments of interest, the whole should become due.

Hit by Freight Train.

Struck by a freight train on the P. V. & C. at Tippecanoe Saturday night, Joe Williams, aged 46, a well known fire boss for the Pittsburg Coal Company, at Smock, was thrown to the side of the track where he was found in an unconscious condition by the crew of passenger train No. 168 about 7 o'clock Saturday night. He will recover.

Had Nose Nipped.

Sam Kopenal, aged 30 years, of Dunbar, was admitted to the Cottage State hospital Saturday night with his nose painfully cut and a slight cut on the cheek. Kopenal claimed that he was watching a fight between two acquaintances at Dunbar when one of the men turned on him and cut him with a knife.

Health Officer Complains Against Physicians Not Reporting Typhoid.

Health Officer Allen Hyatt is complaining that many physicians do not report all the cases of typhoid fever, in order that the proper quarantine regulations can be made. During the month of September there were 30 cases of this disease, although all of them were not reported to the Health Officer. There were 16 cases during August, all of which were not reported. This makes a total of 46 cases during the past two months. This number is, if anything, larger than usual, although in August and September of each year typhoid cases are almost general.

Health Officer Hyatt has received strict orders from the State Health Department that all cases of typhoid must be reported. Physicians failing to live up to this requirement will be reported to Dr. S. G. Dixon.

There is also considerable diphtheria and typhoid fever in the borough, most of them on the West Side. Health Officer Hyatt says he cannot account for these and advises that every precaution be observed to maintain sanitary conditions. He suggests that plenty of lime be used where there are bad odors, stagnant water and especially along the river bank where refuse is apt to accumulate.

The Connellsville Board of Health will hold a meeting this afternoon. The Board of Health has not been holding its sessions with any degree of regularity for more than a year past. A meeting has been called this afternoon to take up several matters of importance.

Brith Sholom Is Organized by Hebrews

Agudas Israel Lodge No. 302 Independent Order Brith Sholom was installed in Connellsville last night by Grand Master Samuel Berkowitz of Philadelphia. This is the first Hebrew lodge in Connellsville. It organized with a membership of 100, male and female members. The examination and installation of applicants took place at the Moose hall. Dr. Atkinson had been engaged as temporary medical examiner, but owing to the list of applicants being so large two additional physicians were sent for. It was only after Drs. T. H. White and S. G. McCune arrived when relief was noticed. However it took the three physicians just two hours and 40 minutes to complete the medical examination.

It was ten o'clock when the entire lodge was called to order and all members were asked to rise to be initiated. A brief speech was then made by Grand Master Berkovitz, after which temporary chairman Jacob Kinsbursky opened the meeting for election.

The following were elected for a three month term: Abe Cohen, President; Max Lovine, Vice President; J. Sabolisky, Treasurer; Michael Capin, Recording Secretary; Emanuel Horwitz, Financial Secretary; M. Ficks, Abe Gordon and Jacob Rippin, Trustees; Harry Cohen, Outside Guard.

The benefits of the lodge are as follows: Each member is insured for $1,000, which is a joint policy. It also pays $5 per week sick benefits to male members only. The dues are $1 per month for married members, and 75 cents per month for single members. This order is looked upon as the future strongest Hebrew organization, as it is not quite six years old, and has lodges in 48 different cities and a total membership of 21,000. Just where the lodge will be located is not yet known as same is in the hands of a committee.

May Put End to Vanderbilt Cup Races in Future

United Press Telegram.

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The Nassau county Board of Supervisors met today and are expected to prevent future Vanderbilt Cup and Grand Prix automobile races, owing to the excessive number of fatalities.

Harold Stone, Mrs. Ferdinand D'Zuva and Theodore Graimutti, D'Zuva's chauffeur, are near death at the Nassau hospital.

LITTLE WASHINGTON GROWS.

Increased 11,108 During the Past Ten Years and Now Has 18,778.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(Special.) The census of Washington, Pa., is announced at 18,778, an increase of 11,108 in the past decade.

East Washington borough has 1,400, an increase of 249.

Killed by Car.

Run down by a West Penn street car on the Ferguson bridge George Bodner, aged 42, a Youngstown miner, was literally ground to pieces Saturday night. Bodner had been to Greensburg and had become so short of funds that he was compelled to walk to his home in Youngstown. He had made the trip as far as Ferguson about three miles from his home when the accident occurred. It is said he was asleep on the track when struck.

More Clouds and Some Rain.

Increasing cloudiness and probably showers tonight; Tuesday warmer is the noon weather forecast.

Another Tragedy Follows Accident on New Hampshire

United Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Searchers for the bodies of men of the battleship New Hampshire who were drowned doubt whether they will find any of them for several days. This morning "Frenchy," a jackie on the Kansas, dived to rescue a young woman falling from the 157th street landing. Ensign Blackburn followed and grasped the girl. A life belt was thrown and he was saved.

"Frenchy" missed the belt and was drowned. A Board of Inquiry is pondering over the responsibility.

Bonsall Dwinell, reported missing, is safe.

The name of "Frenchy" was Eugene Audit. The rescued woman is not known. She shouted she had lost a $350 diamond ring.

"Don't bother us, a man is drowning; we're busy," snapped the police. The woman shrieked: "I don't care, my ring is worth a damned sight more than a sailor."

Audit's friends made a concerted rush at her, incensed with anger.

"Throw her overboard!" they shouted.

Policeman Blackburn and bystanders with difficulty restrained the infuriated sailors.

Litigation in Estate of C. H. Rush, Jr.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Oct. 3.—Alleging that he has fraudulently assigned sums to various parties, a petition has been presented asking that the facts charged against James S. Rush, legatee under the will of the late Charles H. Rush, Jr., be tried by a jury. The petitioners for the jury trial are B. J. Thalheimer and the Monongahela National Bank of Brownsville by W. A. Edmiston, cashier.

The petitioners allege that to avoid payment of a judgment note, James S. Rush has fraudulently assigned to R. E. Creswell and W. W. Williams $1,000 each; to A. D. Boyd, $1,250; to Logan Rush, $100; to A. W. Buck, $3,000; to J. V. Thompson, $400, and to F. H. Rosboro $270.

It is alleged that through these assignments Rush has exhausted his share in the estate. Edmiston petitions for a jury trial for the assignments to Buck and Rosboro, in addition to the other petition.

Two Jags Too Many for Poor A. Campbell

Anthony Campbell, who last worked at Somerset, had an expensive jag on Saturday. He took a tumble on Main street during the afternoon and claimed he broke his shoulder blade. The hospital later telephoned for the police, declaring there was nothing wrong with Anthony save too much firewater. At that time he had $34.05 on him and paid the $3.50 fine yesterday morning. Yesterday afternoon he was arrested once again. His money had disappeared and he will remain in the lockup for 48 hours.

Lin Robbins was arrested with him. Lin says he met Campbell during the afternoon but saw no money on his companion. The two got away with a pint of alcohol between them and then the police did the rest.

Yesterday's session of police court was remunerative, Burgess Evans taking in $31 in fines and forfeits. Common drunks were the rule although a quartette of fighters left forfeits.

Operated on for Appendicitis.

Miss Elizabeth Swan of Confluence was operated on for appendicitis this morning at the Cottage State hospital. She was resting easy at noon.

DAWSON BRIDGE CELEBRATION.

Parade and Speeches Drew Big Crowd on Saturday.

THE SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

By County Solicitor Hopwood Following Short Address of M. M. Cochran, President of the Old Bridge Company.

By Burton F. Gillett.

DAWSON, Oct. 3.—In a manner befitting the occasion, citizens of Vanderbilt, Dawson, East Liberty and Dickerson Run Saturday afternoon celebrated the freeing of the bridge over the Yough, joining the four towns. Though a trifle windy, the weather could hardly have been better. Order was very good throughout the entire day, and the event was successful in every way.

Promptly at 2 o'clock, the parade moved from the starting point at Main and First streets, in Vanderbilt. Following the State road to Dawson, the long line wended its way slowly between the rows of spectators who crowded along the edges of the roads and streets. It is estimated that between six and seven thousand people were in Dawson and between 9 and 12 o'clock in the morning more people are said to have traveled over the bridge than have paid toll in the last week.

The parade which was the feature of the day, was over a mile in length, and was over 40 minutes in passing over the bridge. Floats of almost every shape and kind, some handsome and others grotesque, were numerous. After parading the streets of Dawson, the line disbanded near the speaker's stand at that end of the bridge.

Toastmaster T. Robb Deyarmon rapped for silence at 3.20. In a few words he introduced M. M. Cochran, president of the bridge company, who said in part: "It is an occasion of great interest that will call 5,000 people from their homes and offices to congregate to witness any event. The freeing of this bridge is one in which the community has shown great interest and one that they are justified in celebrating. We may pause for a moment and consider the events that led up to today.

"Our company was organized and incorporated in February, 1882, and began immediately to construct this bridge, completing the work on the 28th of March, 1883. By March, 1911, the bridge would have been collecting tolls for 28 years. The community had long felt the need of this bridge. First they had forded the stream and then ferried. I well remember George Ransom, who operated a hand wire ferry at this point for a number of years. But the progress of the community was such that it demanded something more in the manner of transportation.

"At this juncture a distinguished citizen, whose name you all know, rose up, organized a company and constructed the present bridge. If this community owes any gratitude to a man in public life it owes such a debt to James Cochran. I say this not because I am his kinsman, but because I knew him better than anyone else.

"When James Cochran started out to finance his plan, people did not put much faith in the idea, but some foresaw the future in store for the enterprise, and among those who subscribed for stock were, John K. Ewing, Alfred Howell, Charles E. Boyle, W. H. Playford and Charles H. Seaton, all of Uniontown. John Rist, over 90 years of age, is still an important and large stockholder. A. C. McCune, secretary of the company at the present time, was one of the first subscribers.

"Mr. McCune and myself are the only two directors of the first organization living, today. James Cochran continued as president of the company up until his death in 1894. His son, Phillip C. Cochran followed in his father's footsteps, up until his death in June, 1899. The position then fell upon my shoulders, and I am to be congratulated today that when I lay down the harness, I lay it upon shoulders which will never die.

"I want to congratulate the citizens of this community on the spirit they have shown. We are interested in the future of this vicinity as well as you. That the interests demanded the freeing of this bridge was evident. The Commissioners this morning handed over to me the collateral to soothe any wounds the company may have had. The wounds are soothed. We are ready to lay down the sceptre, and, as Bryan says, 'Let the People Rule!'

"Having received the reward, I hold in my hands this little key, used by our illustrious toll keeper, Henry J. Molleston. By authority of the company I now hand over the key to Solicitor R. F. Hopwood, for the county."

FUSION REJECTED BY THE DEMOCRATS.

State Executive Committee Will Keep Grim in the Field.

PARTY SENTIMENT EXPRESSED

Strongly at Philadelphia Meeting Against Alliance With the Keystone Party—Leaders Claim the Situation Is Hopeful.

Special to The Courier.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—There will be no fusion between the Democratic and Keystone parties. At a meeting of the Democratic State Executive Committee in this city Saturday, Senator Webster Grim, Gubernatorial nominee, and the rest of the ticket were enthusiastically upheld and directed to proceed with their campaign. State Chairman Arthur G. Dewalt, of Lehigh county, issued a statement announcing practically that a union of the Democratic and Keystone forces was impossible, and Senator Grim will make public his views on the subject within a few days.

Seven of the nine members of the Executive Committee were present, and the other two were represented by proxies. All but one of them insisted that the State nominees had been honestly and fairly nominated by delegates elected by the people, and that, therefore, it would be unjust and unfair for the committee to ask them to withdraw. It was also the opinion of eight committeemen that Senator Grim and his colleagues should not be asked to get off the ticket and agree to a fusion movement with the Keystone party. It was pointed out that the latter organization was entitled to no recognition.

Although a discussion of the question lasted for several hours, the final decision was to the effect that neither the Keystone party nor the Philadelphia citizens, who had asked both Berry and Senator Grim to withdraw, represented anybody but themselves, and no attention should be given their communications. The nomination of Senator Grim and his colleagues; it was argued, was won fairly and in a convention of delegates representing the Democracy of the entire State, and therefore no committee should take it upon themselves to ask him or his colleagues to withdraw. It was also the almost unanimous opinion of the committee that there were good prospects for Democratic success, and the party should stick to its nominees.

When Senator Grim presented the communication he received from the committee of Philadelphia citizens asking him to withdraw and allow a man to be nominated, the members of the committee immediately declared in strong terms that no such proposition should be considered. City Chairman W. J. Brennan of Pittsburg, was the only man who argued for fusion. His arguments, however, failed to move his colleagues, and Senator Grim was given to understand in short order that the committee, almost to a man, were for his continuation in the field. Brennan's arguments were met with stronger arguments from the other side, and, finding himself in the minority, he soon relinquished the fight and gave enthusiastic assurance that he would work for the whole ticket.

Every member of the committee present gave expression to his views on the subject. Thomas H. Greevy, nominee for Lieutenant Governor, and James L. Blakslee, nominee for Secretary of Internal Affairs, also expressed their views. Senator Grim declared it was entirely up to the committee as to what he would do. If they wanted him to withdraw he would do so; otherwise he would fight to a finish. This sentiment was applauded.

Mr. Greevy urged Senator Grim to stick, and declared that if the Keystone party or other independents wanted fusion he was willing to stand aside and allow Mr. Berry to be nominated for Lieutenant Governor. The committee, however, would listen to no such proposition. Neither would they consider for a moment the suggestion of Mr. Blakslee that he give his place to an independent.

The committee gave the nominees to understand that they had been placed in the field by delegates elected by the people, and that therefore they should stick until such delegates asked them to get out. The members of the committee pointed out that those who were really for reform in the State Government should vote the Democratic ticket. The records of the party nominees were recommended to their investigation, the committee feeling satisfied that every independent voter would find Grim and his colleagues worthy of their support. All of the Democratic nominees, it was argued, have splendid records and deserve the support of every citizen of the Commonwealth who is anxious to break the Republican machine rule. No better candidates could be found, they declared, and hence if the people were really in earnest in their desire for a change of government they could find it in the Democratic party.

Klipper Club Entertained.

The Klipper Club was delightfully entertained on last Friday evening by Paul Blackstone at his home near town. The young people were conveyed to the Blackstone home in a large hay wagon. The club colors, green and orange, prevailed in all the appointments and a profusion of fall flowers formed the floral decorations. The porch and orchard, where the games were played, were attractively decorated and brilliantly illuminated with Japanese lanterns. At a late hour dainty refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Ethel Coughanour and will be in the form of a masquerade party.

Home Day Services.

The annual Home Day services were observed yesterday morning and last evening at the First Baptist Church. The morning and evening services were attended by unusually large congregations and the church was attractively decorated for the occasion. The pulpit was fitted up as a library and presented a very home like appearance. Ferns and fall flowers were used as floral decorations. In the morning Rev. Patmquist preached on "The Ideal Home" and in the evening on "The Ideal Wife and the Ideal Husband."

Hostess at Bridge.

In honor of her sister, Mrs. C. S. Tiers of Oakmont, Pa., Mrs. Osmon L. Eaton was hostess at bridge Saturday afternoon at her home on South Pittsburg street. Three tables were called into play and following the games prizes were awarded to Miss Kathryn Frisbee and Mrs. E. J. Moro. A well appointed luncheon was served. Miss Joan R. Snyder of New Castel was an out of town guest.

EVERSON WON

Game From Youngwood on Saturday, Score, Five to Two.

EVERSON, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—Everson beat Youngwood Saturday at the Livengood grounds by the score of 5 to 2 in a hotly contested game of ball. Both teams were on their toes every minute of the game. Both Horne and Werner twirled in fine style. Werner was somewhat erratic at times and hit several of Gordon's men. Up to the sixth inning the score stood 1 to 1. Then Everson took the lead and was never headed, although they were in serious straights at times. Everson played the better ball in the last part of the game, landing on Werner for several clean safeties.

Werner of Youngwood is said to be on the Philadelphia Athletic's twirling staff for next year. The lad has plenty of steam and fairly good control. He hasn't been playing for some time which resulted in his inability to get good control of the sphere during Saturday's contest. Horne, Everson's crack pitcher, is said by several to be on the good side of a major league scout that was in this section recently.

Wants, for rent, for sale, etc., cost only one cent a word.

Fifty Years Ago Today.

Sir Charles Dilke, noted English Radical, married to Mrs. Mark Pattison "in the midst of his constituents" at Chelsea. In other words, the church was thrown open to the crowd from the street indiscriminately, "the rich and the poor, the respectable and the unrespectable."

A SLAUGHTER.

Keystones Were Easy Prey For the Morgan A. C. Boys.

OWENSDALE, Oct. 3.—(Special.) The Morgan A. C. walloped Louis Eicher's Scottdale Keystone team Saturday in a one sided game by the score of 16 to 4. Morgan A. C. had everything their own way and practically scored when they wished. Notwithstanding the one sided game Eicher's tribe must not be rated as Junior longuers. The shifty Scottdale lad has bunched together a team that knows the game, plays well together and on their feet every minute of the game.

Hostettler and Clark started the game for the Keystones and gave away to Connors and King but this did not make any difference to the heavy swatters from the valley. The Morgan batteries were R., and L. Klingensmith and Robbins.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Anna J. Percy.

Five months after the death of her husband, Mrs. Anna J. Percy, aged 74 years, died this morning at 1 o'clock at her late home on North Pittsburg street. Mrs. Percy has been in poor health for the past several years and her condition had been serious for the past month. Since the death of her husband a change for the worse was noticed in her condition. Last Wednesday she became unconscious and remained in that state up until death. James K. Percy, husband of the deceased died on a Monday afternoon at four o'clock. Mrs. Percy's death was due to the infirmities of old age.

Deceased was a daughter of James and Jessie Bell and was born and reared in Alleghany county. Fifty-five years ago last August, she was married in Allegheny to James K. Percy and all their married life with the exception of several years spent in Frostburg, was spent in Connellsville. Mrs. Percy is the last surviving charter member of the Frostburg United Presbytorian church. After coming to Connellsville Mrs. Percy joined the First Baptist church, her husband being a member of that church. She was a charter member of the Ladies' Aid Society and at one time held and faithfully filled the offices of secretary and treasurer. Mrs. Percy was a great reader and as the result was well posted in all current events. She was a remarkably bright woman and was highly respected by her wide circle of friends.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Minnie Marietta, wife of Wade H. Marietta, James D., George B., Jesse G., and Harry S. Percy, all of Connellsville. One brother, Andrew Bell of Alleghany, also survives. Nine grand children and one great grandchild also survive. Funeral from her late home Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. E. A. E. Palmquist, pastor of the First Baptist church will officiate. Interment in Chestnut Hill cemetery.

Curvino Runzio.

Curvino Runzio, aged 3 years, son of Frank and Catherine Runzio, well known foreigners of Upton, died Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Cottage State hospital as the result of an accident with which he met several weeks ago. The little fellow was kicked in the head by a horse, sustaining a fracture of the skull.

The body was removed to Funeral Director J. L. Studer's rooms and prepared for burial and was later removed to the home of his parents. Interment today in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Ray W. Hannon.

Ray W. Hannon aged 22 days, infant son of Joseph and Ella Hannon, died Saturday at his late home on Baldwin avenue. Funeral services were held from the family residence yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Chestnut Hill cemetery.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it; and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good." It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page Illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

WASHINGTON HIGHLANDS
DON'T READ THIS!
Unless You Wish to Double Your Money.

MR. INVESTOR:—We wish to bring to attention a Real Estate proposition which is altogether different, far more conserative than any other proposition ever advertised and as sure to increase in value as the United States is to increase in population, because the increase of population in this country acts directly upon this city, which in the next ten years will far surpass any in the world for magnificence in Buildings, Parks, Streets and Boulevards.

This City is WASHINGTON, D. C., the seat of Government of the greatest and wealthiest country in the world.

SOME THINGS ABOUT WASHINGTON, D. C., YOU PROBABLY DO NOT KNOW.

Washington, D. C., is but 8 miles square and will never be any larger in area than it is now. There are 49 square miles of ground in the entire District of Columbia and the Government owns more than one-half of that.

We will sell you a lot in Washington Highlands located in South East Washington for $210.00, $20.00 cash and the balance at the rate of $5.00 per month.

With 90 foot streets, 15 foot rear alleys, Fire and Police Protection, Water, Sewerage and Gas, within four minutes walk of the Nichols Avenue trolley line while three more trolley lines have secured franchises to build in this same section.

WATER WORKS AND SEWERAGE.

Congress has passed a law that any subdivision in the District of Columbia having as many as six houses is entitled to Water Works and Sewerage.

We are now 20 minutes from the Capitol Building but the bridge allowed by Congress to be built at once will put us 10 minutes from the Capitol and business section.

The price of $210.00 per lot means but 7½c per square foot while thousands of lots in North West property which do not lay nearly so well as Washington Highlands have sold and are selling for 50c to $5.00 per square foot.

As you can see this means that the man of moderate means is forced to buy in other parts of the city.

Washington Highlands being the best located property of any in the District, we can truthfully say that it will triple in 5 years and in 10 years quadruple.

Now do not think that the above assertion is not a conservative one, for all you have to do is use your own common sense.

Look at this, Washington has a population of 356,000 now according to the official census. Washington increased nearly 100,000 in the past 10 years.

Statistics show that the Government owns more than half of the 49 square miles in the District and there will be 500,000 people living on 20 square miles not owned by the Government within the next 10 years.

Think, Mr. Investor, what an enormous increase this means in the value of Washington Real Estate.

The Government is buying more property in Washington all the time. They recently bought the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue, from 7th street to Capitol Park in order to do away with some undesirable looking business houses and incidentally to add to the beauty of Capitol Park.

This cost the Government millions and the taxpayers of Washington do not have to pay a cent for that, as it is Government property.

You do not find this in any other City in the World. Millions of dollars worth of city property being bought in order to beautify a city, and the Government is spending MILLIONS OF MONEY TO MAKE WASHINGTON THE MOST BEAUTIFUL AND IMPRESSIVE CAPITAL IN THE WORLD.

We offer you property in Washington today for $210.00 that you cannot buy in 10 years for $1,000.00.

WASHINGTON THE CITY THAT IS FORCED TO GROW BY LAW. Every million people added to the United States means so many more Government employees in Washington.

We do not exaggerate when we predict enormous increase in values in the City of Washington because the last 10 years will show that it has done as well in the past as we predict in the future.

This is by far the most conservative Real Estate proposition offered in recent years, for YOU CANNOT POSSIBLY LOSE YOU MUST MAKE MONEY.

WE ARE GOING TO SELL EVERY LOT IN 30 DAYS. THIS IS NO EXAGGERATION. Washington Highlands is going fast because we have 30 salesmen in different parts of the country selling our Washington Real Estate (aside from our "Mail Order" business) and the enormous amount we sell makes us satisfied with small profits and enables us to turn our money over several times each year, otherwise we would hold the property ourselves and make the profit.

REMEMBER WE SELL FAST AT CLOSE PRICES. BUY NOW for every thing we tell you WE GUARANTEE to be exactly right or your money refunded.

FINAL ADVICE: If you can afford to make a purchase, write us and we will send you a plat of the lots. If you cannot, then forget that you have seen this ad, for if you don't either write or forget WASHINGTON HIGHLANDS will be another "Might Have Been" to trouble your future peace.

MONDAY EVENING, OCT. 3, 1910.

PRESIDENT TAFT'S MASTERLY DEFENSE.

The address of President Taft before the National Republican League in New York, Saturday night, printed in another column, will go down in history as a masterly defense of Republican principles as interpreted and administered by him and his advisers, and as understood and approved by Republicans generally.

The President gave all factions of the party credit for the record of performance which stands as conclusive proof of the earnest effort which has been made to redeem Republican platform pledges, and he shows that the redemption has been moral and material, quite sufficient in scope and character as to fairly warrant the Republican party in claiming the title of the Party of Progress. In spite of factional differences within the party, the list of legislative accomplishments is large and important. Its enumeration is worthy of the consideration of every voter and especially of every Republican. It is safe to say that in the history of the nation no party has has in a given time ever met the demands of public sentiment more sincerely, more thoroughly and more promptly.

The President reviews exhaustively the Republican revision of the Tariff, concerning which much has been said and written in ignorance or with deliberate intent to deceive, and upon the continuation of which lack of understanding or deception the Democrats hope to crawl into power again to once more play the bull in the china shop of prosperity by another attempt to bring the American industrial world to a Free Trade basis. The Payne-Aldrich bill has been much misrepresented. It will be better appreciated when better understood. It has been a revision downward. It is a good revenue producer. It undoubtedly contains inequities, but with its passage there has been established a Tariff Commission, which will undertake the delicate task of recommending such specific revisions as shall result in the most wise and just Tariff law ever placed upon the statute books of the country. This commission is already at work, but the President very frankly states that the results of its labors will not be announced until after the election, because he desires above all things that the commission and its work shall be entirely removed from the sphere of political influence.

The revision of the Tariff has always been a serious disturbance to business, so much so that Tariff laws admittedly unfitted to changed conditions have been permitted to remain unaltered because of the danger to business conditions involved in their reconstruction. The remedy for this unfortunate plight undoubtedly lies in a Tariff Commission. Up to this time Congress, jealous of its powers, has refused to create such a body. The commission is now an actual fact, thanks to the present Republican administration, and we believe it can be depended upon to right any wrongs in the Tariff act without disturbing the business equilibrium of the country in any appreciable degree. It is at least entitled to a fair trial. The Democrats would condemn it out of hand, but it must be remembered that they are ready to condemn anything Republican.

It would be well enough, at this point, to inquire, What do the Democrats offer in exchange? The country may well hesitate, as President Taft says, before entrusting the revision of the Tariff to the Democratic party on Free Trade of Tariff-for-Revenue principles. Their Tariff bills are fraught with bitter memories. The intelligent citizens of the Connellsville coke region have reason to remember the last Democratic Tariff measure. They want no more of that kind.

Upon the whole, the President's speech sounds more like a judicial deliverance than a political plea. It accords well with the dignity of his high office. It is consequently worthy of the respect and confidence of every good citizen. It demands enforcement of the laws, but betrays a wholesome regard for the welfare of the people. It breathes a spirit of patriotism and betrays a broad comprehension of the duties of the Chief Magistracy.

Candidate Webster Grim very naturally declined to take to the tall timber on the demand of nine Philadelphia autocrats claiming on occasions to be Republicans and in his decision he was supported by the Democratic leaders. That decision, it is safe to say, will have the endorsement of the rank-and-file of the Democracy. If there is anything which the average Democrat will resent more promptly than another, it is Republican interference in his family affairs. The country had a striking example of this fact in 1872.

The destination of B. & O. train-jumpers in this vicinity is usually the Connellsville lock-up, but the Ohiopyle train-jumper got sidetracked at the hospital with one leg less, more's the pity.

Abandoned coke plants are not always dead ones. Some of the Connellsville region coke plants have had as many lives as a cat.

The West Side is keeping the fire department busy, but it is undestrable business.

President Taft's Great Speech On Progressive Republicanism.

The address of President Taft before the National Republican League in New York Saturday night will probably be his only address in this campaign. He said:

I am here because I believe this league is a most important aid in the upbuilding and defense of Republican principles. As President I prefer to avoid partisan controversy, but there are occasions, and it seems to me the present is one, when it is not improper for me to discuss the issues soon to be considered and decided by the electorate. In pursuit of promises made in its last National Platform the Republican party, in the short period of 18 months presented to the public, as accomplished facts, the following most important legislation and executive action:

The powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission were enlarged. The commission was empowered to suspend any proposed increase of rates until the shipper shall have a chance to be heard as to its reasonableness. Inter-State telegraph and telephone companies were brought within the regulation of the commission.

The new Court of Commerce was provided in order that shippers and railways might secure prompt decision.

Railway employes were protected by a new safety appliance law.

The Employers' Liability act was perfected.

An inquiry into workingmen's compensation for injuries received was instituted.

An inquiry into the issuance of railway stocks and bonds was inaugurated.

A new Customs Court was established.

A postal savings bank system was authorized.

A corporation tax was adopted, which is an important source of revenue and a new and effective method of assisting the Government in supervising corporations.

Two battleships were added to the navy.

A Bureau of Mines was established.

Seventy million acres of the public domain were legally withdrawn from entry.

Twenty million dollars in bonds were authorized to complete reclamation projects, after a board of army engineers now at work should complete its investigation of existing projects.

Enlarged appropriations were made to survey public lands.

A definite commitment was made against the "piecemeal" or "pork barrel" system of river and harbor improvement.

New Mexico and Arizona were advanced toward Statehood.

A Peace Commission was authorized.

An investigation into the business method of conducting the Government was begun.

The appropriations for the current year were cut $30,000,000 below the appropriations of the year before.

The Tariff was revised without the usual disturbance of business. Because of its reduction of Tariff rates, its maximum and minimum provisions, the Free Trade it secures for the Philippines and its fine revenue-producing qualities, the Payne law is coming generally to be recognized as a most creditable bill.

Our platform promised to revise the Tariff immediately and also to revise it to accord with the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad. These two promises proved somewhat inconsistent, in that immediate revision conforming to such a plan was impracticable, because the information needed was not at once available but the inconsistency was met by the provision of a Tariff Board to report the necessary facts.

The new Tariff Commission for the work of which $2,500,000 was appropriated, has already completed its preliminary report, and the commission is now at work in this country. I have authorized the chairman to make a public statement of the purposes and methods of the commission, but I have directed him not to make that statement until after the election, because insofar as possible I desire the Tariff Commission from its very inception to be kept free from the vicissitudes of partisan politics, so that it will gain the respect and the confidence of the whole country, regardless of party lines.

Finally, since the bill passed, I have recommended and nearly every Republican candidate for Congress and Republican State platforms generally have declared that hereafter when the Tariff shall be revised by Republicans it shall be revised one schedule at a time instead of by a general revision of the entire Tariff.

We have provided the machinery for a further revision on the Protective Principle when the necessary information has been secured. In my judgment the country will hesitate before entrusting a further revision of the Tariff to the Democratic party on Free Trade or Tariff-for-Revenue principles. That party has not, within our memory, revised the Tariff without creating profound business disturbance, and its revision was immediately repudiated by the country after a short but bitter experience.

I have thus summarily stated the Republican accomplishments of a short 18 months. Everything foreshadowed in our platform, however, there was not time to consider and carry out.

We agreed to adopt measures for the improvement of our foreign merchant marine which everyone will admit to be in a condition of decadence disgraceful to a country of our size and power.

We agreed to pass a law embodying the best practice in the issuing of injunctions without notice. When this is carried out, it will, I believe, do much to remove a fruitful source of political discussion, which arouses prejudice and class feeling and which is fed by misrepresentation.

We agreed to provide for the making of limited traffic agreements between inter-state railways, subject to the approval of the commission.

Then there is the badly needed legislation for additional safety appliances. I refer to the bills pending in Congress for the Government inspection of locomotive boilers and for the elimination by Government direction of danger to employes from overhead and sideway projections.

We need the enactment of laws authorizing the disposition of coal, phosphate, oil and gas lands of the Government, and the water power sites owned by the Government along streams in which there is valuable water power, now uncontrolled and unappropriated, under leases or grants which shall induce investment of private capital in the development of those lands, but shall continue the Government as ultimate controller of the properties with an equitable provision for readjustment of terms at comparatively short periods. Indeed, the alternative part of the whole policy of conservation awaits action, and the Republican party is pledged to give this subject the attention it deserves.

We need a new government for Alaska, with laws properly protecting the Government domain in that vast empire.

We agreed to supplement and strengthen the anti-trust law in so far as it might have been vigorously enforced.

We are hoping for a readjustment of our relations with Canada that shall bring the two countries into a closer commercial union, beneficial to both.

Finally, we are committed to an elimination of the defects in our banking and currency system with respect to which the monetary commission has accumulated much material.

No one can read the list of measures actually passed and those proposed by the National Republican party and not admit that the party is Progressive in the highest degree. It is a list to be proud of. The extraordinary achievements of this Congress may fairly be said to be part of a great Republican movement. It is not the work of the Executive alone or of Congress alone. It is not the work of one man or of one faction. As all shared in the work so we all must share in the satisfaction of accomplishment. It is the work of Republicans. It marks the rising tide of progress that began at the end of a Democratic panic, when William McKinley was our leader, and that continued throughout the two administrations of Theodore Roosevelt.

It is peculiarly a Republican distinction that our party has been able to place on the statute books far-reaching remedial legislation touching the very vitals of our social and economic structure without involving the country in financial disaster.

A party of true progress is not a party of radicalism. It is not a party of ultra-conservatism. A Progressive Republican is one who recognizes existing and concrete evils and who is in favor of practical and definite steps to eradicate them.

Now, what are the specific evils that have aroused our people? I believe that they have been growing in this country for years and years, and they can be briefly stated, thus:

1. The corrupt control of legislative and governmental agencies for the establishment, maintenance and enjoyment of unjust privileges by individuals or corporate wealth. To make this control effective there have been organized and maintained corrupt machines within both parties which break the current of communication and responsive action between the people and those who are elected to serve and represent them.

2. Combinations of capital in industrial business, generally brought together for the extensible and commendable purpose of reducing the costs of production and distribution, have too often had the real purpose of suppressing competition, controlling prices and maintaining monopoly.

Everyone who is frank must admit that great progress has been made in fighting those evils. Fifteen years ago the rights of the people to our natural resources were freely disregarded. The natural resources of the Nation are now in the way of being conserved for the people, who are the ultimate owners of such resources and ought to remain so.

Fifteen years ago one of the commonest forms of corporate abuse was the management of our railways in the interest of favored individuals by secret rebates. That day has passed. Our new railway act goes much farther and greatly increases the powers and duties of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The discretion of the commissioners, not within judicial control by appeal is now very wide and they have in their hands for the weal or woe of general business a power that sometimes makes one tremble. The personnel of the commission becomes therefore as important as that of our highest courts. The responsibility of the executive in the appointment of the commissioners is a heavy one. A trend or bias of mind on the part of a member is dangerous. The judicial quality of each should be fine.

We have said to the railways and their stockholders. We cannot trust to competition, and we cannot trust to you the fixing of proper rates."

Having created a tribunal with power to settle what rates are just it should be borne in mind that the public welfare and the whole business interest of the country may be injured quite as much by injustice to the railways as the result of an unwise clamor for low rates, as by the imposition of extortionate rates. It is not without significance in this connection that employes and wage earners of railways are today associating themselves together for the purpose of using their influence to prevent injustice to their employers by oppressive legislation or oppressive regulation under the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Fifteen years ago the general control of Legislatures by corporate influence and corruption was far greater than it is today. The crusade initiated by Mr. Roosevelt and carried on during his term of office has resulted first, in arousing the entire community to the necessity for reform, and second, in inducing many corporation managers to abandon methods that were questionable, and to leave politics to other hands.

It was impossible to arouse the people to a just indignation at corrupt corporate control through machine and boss rule without having such a movement acquire an impetus that carries it to extreme views, and the electorate is now searching for a reform procedure under which bosses cannot live, machines can never control and corruption can never exert influence.

Hence, we have movements to eliminate the middleman in politics and to give popular sentiment a more immediate effect in Government than perhaps would have been thought wise by our fathers. The existence of such a popular impulse ought to rejoice every patriot with the hope that it will be turned to a useful and permanent betterment of our politics. But however effective these suggested changes may prove at first, I venture to say that no great permanent good can come from them alone unless they are accompanied by a change in the individual voter, and his awakening to the necessity for constant watchfulness and effort on his part to prevent the old evils from appearing in a new guise.

Every one will now admit that the Sherman anti-trust law, passed 20 years ago, and since subjected to a great deal of judicial construction, is effective for the purpose of breaking up combinations that result in the suppression of competition and the establishment of monopolies.

There are pending two cases in the Supreme Court, which it is hoped will throw still greater light on the subject, making even clearer than they are today the lines between legitimate and illegitimate business. It has been thought that those decisions if adverse to the corporations, would greatly disturb financial centers, would halt general business and would bring on financial disaster. I do not share these fears.

I have proposed to Congress in this connection a Federal incorporation act which might be taken advantage of by the largest corporations. It would give and it ought to give no immunity from the anti-trust laws. But it would have this advantage. It would give the Government the benefit of direct supervision of these powerful corporations, and it would afford to these corporations ample opportunity to do legitimate business within the State borders.

It gives me the greatest satisfaction to say that in spite of all the rumors of possible business stagnation, our basic prosperity is assured for the coming year, in that the great volume of the crops now being harvested, in value, will exceed the products of our fields at any period in the past. Our corn crop, our cotton crop, and our oats crop will equal approximately three thousand millions of dollars, and the significance of this fact in its bearing on the business of next year can hardly be overstated.

The millionaire, the great manufacturer and the capitalist seem to derive more benefit, measured in dollars and cents, from prosperity than do the individual workmen, farmer, small merchant, clerk and professional man. But in actual human comfort and happiness prosperity is vastly more important to the wage-earner than to the wealthy.

Hence it is a legitimate office of those charged with governmental responsibility to do what they can to prevent the spreading of fears which will drive capital to its hoarding place and prevent the investments necessary to carry on the widely-expanded business of this country, from which our people derive their livelihood. Business men now view with favor rather than with alarm a strict enforcement of law.

The President then told of the extensions of the Civil Service under his administration, whereby thousands of Government employes have been taken out of the category of political patronage and put into the classified service, thereby securing a more efficient and economical administration of their offices. Touching upon the Democratic campaign charge of Republican extravagance he declared that the net expense of running the government was not over a billion dollars, but about $650,000,000, annually. The Postoffice Department alone, whose appropriation is $250,000,000, is self-sustaining practically. In this connection the President pertinently inquires:

Our Democratic friend are saying that if the Democratic party came into power it would reduce the expenses of this Government $100,000,000. Do they mean that the Democrats would abolish the pension list? Do they mean that they would give up the navy and disband the army? Do they mean that they would abandon Porto Rico and the Sandwich Islands and the Philippines? Let us have a little specification. What are such statements worth unless the gentlemen who make them give us the details of the expenditures that they criticise and expect to avoid if they are left into power and become themselves the National Government.

REPORTED OPTION

Said to Have Been Taken on Greenwood Lots by John Duggan.

It is reported in town today that John Duggan has given the Western Maryland an option on 33 lots he owns in Greenwood for a price said to have been $33,300. Most of those lots are located just east of Eighth street.

Residents of Greenwood have come to the conclusion that the Western Maryland will enter town by following the alley between Seventh and Eighth streets. This seems to be the most practicable route. Most of Duggan's lots are located along this alley.

The Best Values Possible

Fall Suits at $25

There's Satisfaction in Knowing That Your Suit's a Style Leader and Well Worth the Price. As Much Can Be Said of Any of These.

They are suits that are really good values at $35, but the lowness of price isn't the main attraction. It's the suits themselves, the high class materials, the faultless tailoring and correct style lines. The season is far enough advanced that the suit question should have serious thought, that's why we are anxious to have you see these. They come in worsteds and cheviots and are practically plain tailored, coats proper length and skirts with only sufficient pleating to give them fullness. Lined only with Skinner's satin. Slight button and braid effects are shown and some have wide cuff, slant pocket and silk collar. Sizes range from 14 years to size 42. Great at this price $25.00

Fall Coats.—So far, a good assortment of styles on hands in serge, heavy diagonals and broadcloths in styles suitable for auto, street or fine dress. Also, a good collection of cravenette rain coats. All sizes, good fitting and tailoring the best. Don't fail to ask about the new "Presto" collar.

New Dresses.—In light and dark shades suitable for street or evening wear. They come in fine silk materials. French serges, voiles, etc., with beautiful yoke and braided effects. Many of these show the narrow skirt with folds or wide bands and button trimming.

COCHRAN COAL OPERATIONS ON.

Farmers West of Scottdale Interested in Report of Work

DOWN ALONG JACOBS CREEK

They Believe It Means Much to Them. Dr. Silsley Goes To Philadelphia. West Penn Dispatcher Brought Here From Mt. Pleasant.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, Oct. 3.—A great deal of interest has been aroused among the farmers surrounding town and particularly among those to the westward at the news that William Cochran, a Dawson coal man, has resumed long delayed operations in the district along Jacobs Creek, below Chaintown, where he opened three mines. These were opened in the best of shape to take out the Freeport vein of coal, but were allowed to remain idle for a year or more. It is Cochran's plan to build a trolley tram road up from the Yough river and the Baltimore & Ohio railroad from Laurel bottom, below Dawson, and thus get the coal down to connect with the B. & O. for shipment. Dull times coming on Mr. Cochran relinquished work on the development of the many hundreds of acres of coal that he controls along the Jacobs creek valley. Parties from down about Chaintown say that work has been resumed and that a gang is hurrying the work of the electric road so that cars will be running over it within a few weeks, if the present plans are carried out. A motor will be installed it is said to furnish power and Bert Dillinger has been engaged as the operator of the engine for an electric plant that is to be installed near the mines. The opening up and operating of this coal will be a great thing for the farmers whose lands about there will increase in value from this cause. Many of them have been waiting anxiously for such a thing to come to pass, and are greatly elated over the news that has spread that the Cochrans are once more active. This was told by a party in Scottdale on Saturday evening who said several had told him that the Cochran interests will push the coal operations to their best speed this fall and winter. In the same section there is much fine timber suitable for mine uses, and a lot of the finest building stone to be found. It is only a short distance away that the beds of stone from which the Fayette county court house was built from were quarried. They have been so far away from good shipping points that they have lain there all these years at a loss to the owners, who if market had been within reach could have been wealthy from the sale of stone. If a trolley freight road enters that locality this would make a market for the stone, which could be shipped out easily.

Will Locate Here.

The West Penn dispatcher's office has been removed from Mt. Pleasant and located in Scottdale once more. Dispatcher D. H. Flick came along with it, and is consequently back home again. The office had been located at Mt. Pleasant for quite a while, but it was found that on big days the dispatcher was always brought to Scottdale. Superintendent M. A. Coffey decided that if Scottdale was the best place for the dispatcher on big days it would also be the best place for him on lighter ones. Scottdale is the separating point for the the Mt. Pleasant line and the Hunker line to Greensburg

Was Operated On.

Superintendent J. S. Johnson of the West Penn, accompanied by Mrs Johnson were at Mt. Pleasant on Saturday, having their little child, J. Scott Johnson operated on for enlarged tonsils and adenoids. He is 2½ years old. The operation was a success, and took place at the Mt Pleasant hospital, by the Drs. Marsh.

The New Restaurant.

The good, properly cooked and neatly served food at the Broadway restaurant is bringing the place into great opularity.

Gone to Philadelphia.

Dr. N. E. Silsley of Chestnut street, left yesterday for Philadelphia, where he will take a special post graduate course in the Philadelphia Polyclinic and also in the University of Pennsylvania Medical Department, having been graduated from that institution in 1894. He will be absent several weeks in the study of special subjects.

Preached Closing Sermons.

Rev. Archibald Auld was out at the Wesley Chapel Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday morning and preached his last sermon before leaving for conference at Beaver Falls on Tuesday. The election of the Sunday school officers took place, and William Craft was elected superintendent. In the evening Rev. Mr. Auld preached to a large congregation at Jacobs Creek. He has been the minister for the Alverton charge consisting of that place, Jacobs Creek and Wesley Chapel for some years and has been very successful. He is a young minister of exceeding tact and all would be glad to see him returned or be appointed to a much better place. Rev. Mr. Auld's health has been against him and it may be that he will seek work in another climate.

Davis and Mills Meetings.

Many were turned away finding it impossible to get into the First Presbyterian Church last evening where the opening meeting of the Davis and Mills work here was being held. The church was crowded and the meeting was a lively one, being largely the singing of familiar hymns lead by Singer T. A. Mills and the choir that W. J. Barkell has been training for a week, or Evangelist J. A. Davis talked and lead the meeting which was a very interesting one in committees, singers, workers, etc., all the afternoon the ministers, ushers, met in the First Methodist Episcopal Church and considered the plans of the work. The meetings will continue at the Presbyterian Church each evening until the steel tabernacle is built. It has not arrived as yet, but when it does it will be the finest thing it is claimed in the world, for a meeting place. The Broadwater estate has been cleaned off ready for the building. The meetings open at 7:10 and everyone is invited to be present.

Vacations Are Done.

The vacations of the postoffice employes at Scottdale are all done, Miss Katheryn Booher, of the clerks, being the last to enjoy the annual holidays and O. S. Love of the carriers to rusticate. Postmaster B. C. Fretts has not had a vacation in three years.

Taken to Morgantown.

Mrs. Ida B. Carson, wife of John Carson, of West Pittsburg street, who died suddenly on Thursday night and whose funeral services were held at her late home Friday evening, was 42 years of age, and had been in somewhat ill health for some time, but grew worse suddenly and died. The body was taken to Morgantown, W. Va., today for burial on Sunday. The deceased was a sister-in-law of Mrs Fay R. Dile, who died a few days before.

Card of Thanks.

John M. Carson of Scottdale wishes to extend his heartfelt thanks to all those who so kindly assisted him during his recent bereavement caused by the sickness and death of his wife Ida B. Carson.

BE CAREFUL BOYS

If You Want the "Boss" to Select You For Promotion.

Manufacturers and merchants—especially the men at the head of the big concerns—are inquiring more and more into the habits and character of the young men whom they employ. The dashing spendthrift has no place in the business world of today. He is not trusted, but the young man who is prudent and saves his money secures the confidence and respect of his employers and is certain to be promoted. This is in itself an excellent reason why every young man should have a savings account. The First National, the oldest and strongest National bank in Connellsville, is a good place to have it. Four per cent. interest. $1 opens an account.

DAWSON BRIDGE CELEBRATION.

Attorney Hopwood's Address.

Mr. Hopwood said in part: "Fellow citizens. What I'll do with this key I know not. I can't collect toll. You would not let me. This is the last toll bridge in Fayette county. If it had not been for their efforts we couldn't have built the Connellsville, Ohiopyle, Confluence, Point Marion,, Bellevernon, and Dawson bridges. Altogether they have cost over one-half million dollars. And there are 135 other bridges in Fayette county that cost $200,000 to build, 111 in all and everyone free for you to pass over whenever you please.

"The county is now turning its attention to better roads. More than $10,000 has been spent in the last few years. In the next five or 10 years hundreds of thousands of dollars will be put to the betterment of roads.

"Fayette county has a court house and a jail, all paid for but $45,000, and this payment is limited to $9,000 a year. We could pay it now if called upon to do so. We have a county that we should be proud of. In the last 17 years the taxes have never exceeded four mills, as low if not lower than any other county in the State. Only about one-sixth of the total taxation in Uniontown is county tax. One-eighth of the Connellsville tax, one dollar in eight, is county tax. I don't know what the rates are in Dawson.

"We own a county home that didn't cost much when it was first built, but today it is worth $100,000. Each you, are citizens of Fayette county. You are worth over $1,000,000, because such men as the Cochrans lived in this county. I believe some other men built the first two or three coke ovens about here, but the Cochrans bought them and made the first money out of the business. Why bless you, Dawson is the father of the whole coke industry. Uniontown never heard of the coke business until Dawson had made thousands of dollars out of it. Connellsville didn't begin until sometime later. The Cochrans, Newmyers, Rists and the Cores are the people who started the industry.

"Brownsville will soon be disputing with Connellsville and Uniontown as to the center of the coke region. It doesn't matter where the center is, so long as we control the business. In the next few years I expect such a degree of prosperity to be reached as is not known elsewhere.

"I am glad to accept this bridge for the County Commissioners. As soon as the bridge viewers settled the amount of damages, we said 'Now we are ready.' And Mr. Cochran said he was ready, too. This morning we passed over to him an order for $30,000 and two notes for $15,000 each, bearing six per cent. interest. One will be paid in nine months and the other in ten, just long enough for us to collect a little more money. I can assure you the taxes will not be raised one penny, or will we have to borrow on a bond issue. We hope to build other bridges in the near future.

"I accept the key to the bridge for the Commissioners, who will keep it as a memento of the occasion."

Hopwood's address was followed by hearty applause on the part of his listeners, after which Toastmaster Bryarmon said he had been asked to thank the citizens in behalf of the Union Board of Trade for the interest and enthusiasm they have displayed at all times towards the project.

Lineup of the Parade.

Heading the parade were Harry Crawford, Wilbert Snyder and Earnest Cogan, three boys who carried a large wooden key, representing the key to the gate across the Dawson end of the bridge. When the parade approached, the boys ran ahead, unlocked the gate and threw it open, to the public as well as the marchers.

Chief Marshal George M. Strickler of Vanderbilt, followed behind the boys; his aides, Joseph Snyder, J. B. Shroffer, L. S. Mellinger of Dawson, James T. Stephens, of Vanderbilt, and J. F. Black of Dickerson Run, all mounted on black horses, drove behind him.

Then came W. A. Landsparger's Military Band of West Newton; 100 school children of Dawson; 200 children from the East Liberty schools and 100 from Vanderbilt; 100 B. of R. T. Pittsburg & Lake Erie men in white caps and overalls, and their float, representing a caboose; delegation of 25 foreigners; A. J. Cochran's automobile containing M. M. Cochran, Rev. M. H. Carnahan, T. Robb Bryarmen and Attorney H. F. Hopwood, automobile of C. O. Schroyer, containing the owner and County Commissioners; six more automobiles, Jackson's Drum Corps of Flatwoods; Oniskee Council Red Men of Dawson in costume, followed by their float drawn by four horses, one of the handsomest in line; Hoodanee Lodge of Red Men, 33 strong, and float; 10 representatives of local foreigner order; Perryopolis Band, Burgess J. C. McGill and Justice of the Peace R. H. Wright of Dawson; Stayman and Morris, clothiers, float; Vanderbilt distillery float, Kelly, the jeweler's float; F. E. Oglevee, grocer, float; P. B. Galley, carriages, buggies and hardware, float, J. W. Gween, grocer, float; Oglevee, McClure & Company, lumber float; William M. Parl's float, advertising Boomer furnaces, J. P. Black, general store, float; William Brierly, float; W. E. Gray, sewing machines, float; A. D. Blair, livery, six horse team, J. H. Sherbondy, N. P. Stickle, Dawson Supply Company, Dawson Bowling Alleys, Vanderbilt Hotel, George C. McGill, general store, J. C. Stauffer, druggist, and the Dawson House, all floats; N. F. Newcomer, dairy, float; Central Hotel, pony outfit; F. H. Ducker, signs, float; Worthington's restaurant, float; Worthington Camp, float; Royal Neighbors of America of Dawson, float; six buggies containing citizens; James Cochran stores; Brown & Cochran employes, float of Brown & Cochran, Nellie mines; Brown & Cochran six horse team and 25 mounted men; three teams of the W. J. Rainey interests and 25 mounted men; three teams of the W. J. Rainey interests; two floats from the Paul works of the Rainey interest, float "We mine the coal" together with full equipment; second, "We make the coke," and necessary equipment, each drawn by six horses; foreign organization. One or two comic floats bearing no name appeared in the line; also horse back riders, carriages and automobiles.

Dawson Celebration Items.

Though they did not appear in the parade, two Connellsville boys attracted a great deal of attention in Vanderbilt during Saturday morning with an apparatus rigged up at their home. Tom Means and Earl Hughes, by name, fastened a steering wheel onto a buggy, and with the aid of two poles in the rear, hitched a horse behind. That the "machine" was not built for entering the Vanderbilt races on Long Island, was very plain, but it served the purpose at Dawson.

One of the most novel floats in the parade was that of the Dawson House. Bushes and trees were fastened to the wagon, and setting in the top branches of the trees, were two live racoons.

One of the floats was built on the plan followed by the man who built a boat, indoors, and then had to tear the house down to get it out. The Dawson man evidently forgot that there was a limit to the heights of the bridge. When he came to drive over, it was necessary to tear part of the overhead decorations off.

Only one accident of any consequence occurred during the entire day. One of Brown & Cochran's floats was loaded with coal and coke. While passing over the bridge, one of the rear steel tires slipped off. The wooden wheel was able to hold up the load only to the end of the bridge. Another wheel had to be secured before they could go on. The parade was only interrupted long enough to draw the wagon to one side of the road.

The committee in charge of the celebration desire to express their thanks and appreciation for the manner in which the Vanderbilt and Liberty teachers took charge of their pupils in the parade.

The Pittsburg & Lake Erie Railroad Company gave their employes at Dickerson Run a half holiday Saturday so they all could turn out for the celebration and the general officers at Pittsburg had their telephones open and heard the playing of the bands as they passed the Lake Erie offices here.

The committee also express their thanks to the Baltimore & Ohio for the courtesy shown during the parade and for the services of special officers sent from Pittsburg for duty during the parade and celebration.

In this regard we wish to call attention to the fact that the Aaron store has been selling furniture for over twenty years in Connellsville and is therefore qualified to give honest and expert advice about furniture, carpets, rugs and all sorts of household furnishings.

We advise the greatest care in buying a home outfit. Not only should qualities be given most careful consideration but special pains should be taken to see that each room in the home harmonizes with all the rest. All our experience in this line is yours for the asking. We will go with you, from department to department, helping with suggestions as to rugs, chairs, tables, beds, draperies and hanging of all sorts and keeping within whatever money limit you see fit to fix.

October brides and grooms will save themselves many regrets and much loss of money if they will let us show them how to avoid the evils and pitfalls in the path of young home-makers. Let us show you "The Aaron Way" of being on the safe side. It places you under no obligation. On the contrary it is always a pleasure to be of real assistance to all customers.

TWO PERISH IN FLAMES

Tenement House in New York is Quickly Destroyed.

New York, Oct. 3.—An old five-story tenement at 80 Hester street was gutted by a fire in which David and Israel Kessler lost their lives.

Morris Bruckatz, aged seventy-eight, who lived in the house, was arrested for homicide in setting fire to the place. Bruckatz accidentally dropped a match in a pile of papers underneath the stairs on the first floor, which blazed fiercely. Bruckatz was too old to put out the flames himself and before the firemen could be summoned the tenement house was a mass of flames.

POLICE SEARCH DYNAMITERS

Great Reward Offered For Capture of Perpetrators, to Which Union Leaders Have Contributed. $7,500. Times Will Care For Families.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 3.—Twenty-one persons, it is now known, lost their lives in the explosion and fire which destroyed the plant of the Los Angeles Times.

Only five of the nineteen bodies buried in the ruins have been recovered.

The police are seeking clues to the perpetrators of the outrage and one more arrest has been made.

Little real progress seems to have been made. The latest suspect, the third taken into custody, is Martin Egan, and he is an alleged anarchist. The police decline to say on what ground they arrested him.

Eighteen thousand and five hundred dollars' reward is now offered for the arrest of the persons who blew up the plant. The city council today raised the city's reward from $5,000 to $10,000. In addition to this the union labor leaders have offered $7,500, and other newspapers $1,000.

General Otis has issued a statement in which he says:

Statement by Otis.

While I am amazed at the desperation of criminal conspirators in destroying the Times building and slaying its loyal defenders, whose loss I deeply deplore, the Times itself will live bravely on defending the vital and essential principles of industrial freedom under the law which must yet triumph in the entire nation."

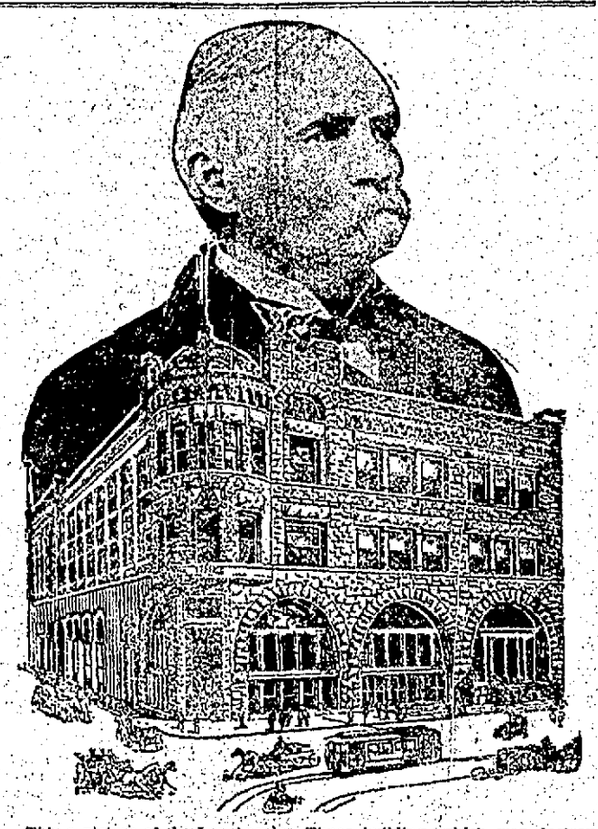
When some friend expressed sympathy with General Otis for the loss of his plant he replied:

"Never mind the buildings. I can get $500,000 worth of new machinery by simply signing a check, but who is going to give me back my men?"

If the opponents of Otis wanted to increase his business they chose the right way. Money for subscriptions and advertisements began to roll in early Saturday morning and figures show that in the first four hours of business $25,000 worth of business was done.

The Times published a statement which says:

"The Times expresses its thanks to its many friends who have made profers of financial assistance to families of the victims of the horror in the Times building. The Times, however, will see to it that the families of its employes who perished in the disaster are cared for."



This a picture of the Los Angeles Times building, which was destroyed by explosions and fire Saturday, October 1. Major General Harrison Gray Otis, the principal owner of the Times, is shown above.

Mine Disaster in Mexico Worse Than First Reports.

Eagle Pass, Tex., Oct. 3.—The coal mine disaster near Esperanza, Mex., about 100 miles south of here, is worse than early reports indicated.

Late advices received here are to the effect that more than 200 men were in the chamber where the explosion occurred and that they are still believed to be dead.

Immediately after the explosion a rescuing party entered the shaft, when a second explosion occurred. Eight members of the party were killed.

The debris, which blocked the entrance to the chamber, was cleared away after several hours' work and dead bodies are being slowly removed, the foul gas is interfering with the work. At last reports more than sixty bodies had been recovered.

A force of government soldiers and rurales is on the ground to preserve order. Members of the bereaved families are gathered around the mine's opening and the scene is heartrending.

The government has ordered an investigation as to the cause of the explosion.

The mine is owned by the Coahuila Coal company, a subsidiary concern of the Mexican Coal and Coke company, which is controlled by Erie railroad interests.

LORD LOVELAND DISCOVERS AMERICA

BY C.N. AND A.M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

"Sure you can get it?" Isidora asked in a confidential yet somewhat doubtful tone.

"Of course I'm sure. I have my letter of credit—the one thing I did manage to keep."

"Yes, but"—

"There isn't any but," cut in Loveland impatiently. "It's certain to be all right this afternoon at latest. The cable will have come to the hotel, and then I shall know what to do. Even supposing the police should arrest me for that affair—well, at worst, the trouble ought to be over and done within a day or two."

"Oh, indeed it wouldn't!" exclaimed the pretty Jewess. "I don't know what mightn't happen to you. You will be careful, won't you—if it's only to please me?" And her eyes were large and beseeching.

"You're very kind to take an interest," said Val, really grateful, though he had to restrain an impulse to draw back from her advances. "Of course I don't want to be let in for a scandal which might do others harm as well as me—and would, if that beast Milton could manage it. I'm not exactly pining to see the inside of a New York jail, which you seem to think I'm in danger of doing. Things are bad enough as it is." And his face darkened, for he thought that after the loathsome publicity the newspapers were now giving the name of Loveland he might have difficulty in bringing down such game as he had crossed the sea to seek.

"Oh, I'm sorry you think things here are so bad," retorted Isidora, flushed and pouting.

"You know I don't mean things here," protested Val, with less truth than politeness. "You're too good to me, and I appreciate it all immensely."

"Do you?" she asked, her eyes liquid.

"Of course I do. I hope I shall be able to prove that before long."

"Well," she said warmly, "I mean to go on being good—better—best to you, for I'm studying out a plan to get your things away from the Waldorf-Astoria hotel and all the same to keep you out of trouble. You're a foreigner and don't understand our ways yet, but I'll see you through all right."

"How are you going to do that, my guardian angel?" Val smiled at the pretty girl.

Isidora had the sensation of being bathed in perfumed cream. His "guardian angel!" She had been called a number of nice things, such as a "real beaut," a high flier and a Floradora, but no one had ever hailed her as his guardian angel before, and with all her heart she vowed that she would live up to the name.

"I don't know exactly yet how I'll do it," she admitted. "But you leave it to me, and it'll be done, you'll see. Only give me an order signed 'Loveland' to bring away anything of yours from the hotel. Meantime I've thought of one thing, which is you'd better not be seen here till we're sure they ain't on to you through that messenger boy. I tell you what, I've got a lady friend in this street, Mrs. Johnny Gernsbacher, who's looking after an empty house that's for rent."

"A caretaker?" asked Loveland.

"I guess that's right. Me and Mrs. Gernsbacher's good friends. She's a widow lady, quite old, most forty-five, so she'll do for a chaperon. You can see to things here for five minutes till I run across and ask if she'll let you stay there in the house, as a friend of mine, till you have time to look around."

"I—see to things?" echoed Loveland blankly.

"Yes. If anybody comes in they'll take you for a swell waiter in those clothes. They'll think Alexander the Great's starting in for uptown style."

She laughed with amusement at the joke, and Loveland laughed, too, though not very heartily. He was not enchanted at the idea of being mistaken for a "swell waiter."

Mrs. Gernsbacher must have been very accessible and easily persuaded, for in less than ten minutes the girl was back again, flushed with triumph. "It's all right," she announced. "Beccy G.'s standing in the basement door, waiting for you to pop in. Bill, you show him the way to Beccy's. Goodby, Mr. Gordon. Don't stay here another minute. I'll be over as soon as I can to tell you what's up, and I'll send Bill along at noon with something good for your dinner."

Nothing had happened when Bill Willing came at 12:30 to find Loveland an appropriately ornamental figure, keeping guard in Mrs. Gernsbacher's kitchen during that lady's absence on a shopping expedition; nothing had happened worth reporting, except that Alexander the Great was "around again."

Isidora had sent, wrapped in a Japanese paper napkin, a ham sandwich and a generous slice of pumpkin pie, a delicacy strange to the Englishman's palate. Bill had brought food for himself, and he had smuggled in his pocket a bottle of ginger ale for both.

"Have you read the beastly newspaper article about me?" Val forced himself to inquire.

"No," answered Bill, "I ain't seen it. Miss Izzie offered me the paper, but I—well, I didn't care to read it. Seemed as if 'twould sorter be sprin' on you behind your back."

"You're a good fellow," said Val.

"I don't see where the goodness comes in," protested Bill modestly. "But I can run back and sneak the paper if you've changed your mind and want a squint at it."

"No, thank you," said Val, though he half scorned himself for moral cowardice. "I've no wish to see how deep New York journalism has pushed me into the mud."

Rebecca Gernsbacher returned from her morning's shopping to ask almost as many questions as she drew breaths, freezing into a cold statue of suspicion

"BECCY G.'S WAITING FOR YOU TO POP IN."

as her mysterious guest froze into reticence. Not having heard the name of Loveland, she did not associate any sensational headlines in the morning paper with Isidora's "swell mash," but there was no crime between pocket picking and murder of which she did not believe the handsome, sulky fugitive easily capable.

Loveland had begun to tell himself gloomily that it would soon be too late to draw money from any bank when Isidora appeared in great splendor at the basement door. She had on a large picture hat of red velvet, nodding with cheap ostrich plumes which shaded from palest pink to deepest magenta, and in her "electric seal" coat she looked as little like a lady as a beautiful girl could possibly look. But she was enchanted with herself and evidently expected to impress Loveland by her taste and elegance.

"Well!" she jaunted, having kissed her friend Beccy and dusted off a chair with the big muff which matched her cloak. "Well, I've got news for you, Mr. Gordon. Guess what it is."

In the first place, pa had been cross and hadn't wanted her to go out, but when she had teased he had only grumbled a little, and directly after dinner—before Bill came back—she had taken an "L" train downtown to consult the husband of a great friend of hers. This gentleman she had persuaded to leave business—he being a tobacco merchant—and to drop in at the Waldorf-Astoria, with the object of making certain inquiries. She had not, she said, confided any secrets to her friend, though she was sure she might have done so safely, but had merely pleaded a passionate yearning for further details of the "story" in the New York Light. What were the hotel people going to do? Were they searching for the Englishman, and, if so, had they got upon his track?

Mr. Rosenstein, being an occasional customer of the Waldorf bar when he "had on his gladdest rags," did not hesitate to undertake the mission. He went to the hotel and asked questions without arousing any suspicion that he was actuated by a deeper motive than idle curiosity, and he learned that the staff of the Waldorf-Astoria took but little interest in the gentleman calling himself Lord Loveland. The Englishman had gone away without paying for his rooms, as the newspapers had said, the hotel people admitted, but goods worth about the amount owing had been left behind. Anything that might have happened, anything of which the Englishman might be accused, did not concern the Waldorf-Astoria now that he was no longer a resident of the hotel, and employees had been instructed not to gossip either in his favor or disfavor. The late Lord Loveland was now shelved as a "back number."

And nobody had called or written! This lack of courtesy showed, to his mind, that Jim's and Betty's friends had all read the newspapers and had taken his affair with Milton in bad part. The man Milton was to blame for the scandal, which had doubtless been spread by Cadwallader Hunter's journalist friend in revenge for a snub. Cadwallader Hunter's malice, too, must have been another match to light the fire of mischief, and, taking everything together, Loveland began to fear that the game in America was up. He began to tell himself that the dignified course was to turn his back on America and march homeward with flags flying as if he had suffered no defeat. Yes; that was what he would do. It would be disgracing himself and his name to go down and wrestle in the arena with enemies who did not pretend to fight fair. Yet—to leave this country forever, with no hope of seeing Lesley Dearmer again! She had not even given him her address and had only laughed elusively when he suggested "calling on her some day after everything was comfortably settled." He knew no more than that she lived "near Louisville;" therefore he could not write to beg that she would not believe any hateful tales the newspapers might invent. Oh, yes, it was all over—that little episode, which had been so sweet, which had taught him that he had heart enough to love and long for a woman because of what she was, not because of what she had.

"You needn't look so broken up," said Isidora. "Wait till I come to the end of the story. I've got a messenger waiting in the street with something for you. I wouldn't let him in till we'd had our talk. Now I'm going to call him down to cheer you up a bit."

She bounced off her chair, ran to the door and shouted up from the level of the basement to the street. In another moment a uniformed youth walked in and deposited a large paper wrapped bundle, but it was not until he had been sent away that Isidora began to open the parcel.

"I wanted to get the lot," she said, "but, my, the bill was high—way above me. I'd $25 I'd been saving up—oh, for something, but you needn't care. I'd a heap rather do this than buy any old thing for myself. And here's what they give me after a lot of fuss."

She tore off the brown paper with a dramatic gesture and triumphantly displayed the suit of tweed clothing which Loveland had taken off the evening before in dressing for dinner. Then her face fell as she saw that his expressed no pleasure.

"I thought you'd like these better than anything, as I couldn't run to all," the girl went on disappointedly.

"You paid my hotel bill!" exclaimed Loveland.

"Only a little, weeny part," Isidora broke in. "Wisht I could have done more."

"I don't," said Val hastily. "Oh, you're very kind—too kind. I don't know what to say. But—your money, that you were saving—why, I—love, it's horrible. And I mayn't be able to pay you back for days!"

"I don't want you to pay me back," the girl said proudly. "It's been a pleasure."

He thanked her as best he could for all she had done and talked down her objections to being repaid. Now, he said, owing to her kindness he could walk the streets without being stared at and would lose no time in cabling to his mother. Oh, he had plenty of money for that! And, smiling as if it were part of a huge joke, he showed what the payment of his small debt to the restaurant had left of his $8.

Seven dollars and a bit—nearly 30 shillings! "Why, he was rich. All he asked now was a room in which to change his clothes.

As there was a houseful of empty rooms, this request was easily granted, and presently Loveland came back to the kitchen suitably clad for daylight, except for the detail of his necktie. Isidora saw no fault in his appearance as she walked proudly at his side on the way to send a cablegram to Scotland.

Secretly Loveland would have been glad to dispense with her company, but she assured him that she had "more time than anything else" and that she would be delighted to guide him, only they "must not go past home, for if pa saw her with a strange gentleman there'd be trouble."

MOTHER TRIES TO SAVE SON

Young Doctor, However, Manages to Cut His Throat.

New York, Oct. 3.—Dr. Hubert B. Gudger of Asheville, N. C., a young graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Medical school, killed himself in a room of the Grand Union Hotel.

His mother heard a gurgling sound and ran into her son's bedroom. She found him lying in bed, a razor in his hand and his throat covered with blood. Mrs. Gudger, throwing her whole weight upon him, tried to wrench the razor from his hand. She clasped both hands about her son's right wrist and tried to pry apart the fingers which held the razor. He succeeded in pushing her from the bed. Her son, without looking at her or saying a word, then continued the work which he had set himself to do.

TWENTY-NINE SAILORS GONE.

Thought All Were Drowned in the Hudson River.

LOADED BOAT FILLS AND SINKS

Though Water Where Men Went Down Has Been Dragged No Bodies Have Been Brought to the Surface. Ensign Chevalier In Charge.

New York, Oct. 3.—In an official statement authorized by Rear Admiral Charles N. Vreeland and given out by Captain Thomas S. Rodgers of the battleship New Hampshire, the number of the New Hampshire's sailors who are believed to have been on the battleship's sailing launch when it filled in the Hudson on Saturday night and who are still missing is set down at twenty-nine.

Twelve members of the liberty party off the New Hampshire who were not known to have in the sailing launch, but who are still missing, were noted in Captain Rogers' list.

Captain Rodgers said that the names published in the list of missing represented a careful process of elimination made in conjunction with the calling of the entire ship's roll.

Though police boats dragged the river between the warship's anchorage and the shore no bodies were recovered.

Ensign Chevalier In Charge.

Ensign Godfrey de Courcelles Chevalier was in command of the battleship's steamer that was ordered to bring the liberty party gathered on the dock there back to the ship. Ensign Chevalier must face a court-martial. Such is the rule of the service and he knows that eventually he must answer to his responsibility in the accident which cost the lives of the sailors. Yet with all this weight of official inquisition before him, Ensign Chevalier is admired by every officer and man of the second battleship division.

"The youngster behaved splendidly," Rear Admiral Vreeland said to the newspaper men. "I'm told he alone rescued twenty men."

"Give Ensign Chevalier every bit of credit that you can," said Captain Rodgers. "He behaved as an officer in the service should; nobody could have done more than he."

The young officer is today almost a wreck from his experiences. His nerves are so frayed by the shock and reflection upon his own responsibility in it so great that his speech is incoherent and his actions violent.

Seaman McMaine's Story.

Ordinary Seaman C. J. McMaine had charge of the New Hampshire's No. 2 steamer when it went to the dock to tow out the sailing launch full of sailors on Saturday night. He was asked to tell of the accident.

"There wasn't room for everybody to sit on the seats," said McMaine. "I remember that forward in the sailing launch there were men sitting down with other fellows sitting on their knees and some crouched upon the floor. I wouldn't say that the bow was overloaded, but there is no doubt that there was a pretty heavy load aboard.

"When we started for the ship there was a pretty stiff wind. There was no steamer in sight and everything seemed to go along all right until we were about halfway between the shore and the Louisiana.

"The first thing I felt was a jerk and I looked back from where I was standing in the bow and saw several of the men in the sailing launch stand up quick. Then I felt another jerk and the whole bow of the sailing launch just simply dove under. It didn't go under slowly. It just jumped under and swept every man into the river, that is every man who did not jump.

Like White Dots in the Water.

"All I saw in the light of our lantern—and the river was very dark then—was just white dots all blotched about in the water. There were yells and hollers about being drowned and not being able to swim. It made my heart jump up in my face to hear those yells.

"Then I heard Mr. Chevalier yell, 'Stop, stop.' Setley shut off the steam in the engine. Back her,' Mr. Chevalier called; but Setley didn't dare to back far, for he was afraid of cutting into the men who were swimming around in the water.

"I saw Mr. Chevalier strip to his underclothes and go over the side. There were five or six poor devils right near the stern who yelled that they couldn't swim. I grabbed up the after life buoy and hove it out to them and I saw them reach for it. Then I ran forward, ripping off my clothes as I ran, and I picked up the forward life buoy.

"I jumped in naked, grabbed the life buoy and swam with it to where the men were. They were excited and started to grab for me, but I fought them off and yelled to them to put one hand apiece on the buoy and paddle to the launch.

"When I climbed aboard the steamer again I could see Mr. Chevalier's head bobbing about in a group of four others and he seemed to be helping all of them toward a steamer which had come from one of the ships. All the time he was yelling to others around in the water to keep up, that they would be saved.

Wanted to Go After More.

"Louisiana steamer No. 2 picked up Mr. Chevalier finally. He was pretty weak. He asked somebody if they thought any of the boys were gone and some fool told him that there were lot's gone. Then Mr. Chevalier went nutty.

"I don't know anything about medicine and I don't know what the doctors would call it, but I'd say that Mr. Chevalier went plumb nutty. He yelled 'Let me go back there, let me go back there.' It took three men to hold him in the boat."

LIVED LIFE OF A RECLUSE

Once Prominent New York Attorney Dies a Hermit Near Claysville, Pa.

Washington, Pa., Oct. 3.—A peculiar story of a brilliant man, years ago a New York attorney of prominence, burying himself in a little community, where he was unknown and living out the closing years of his life as a hermit, was revealed through the death of Ezra S. Luellen, whose body was found in his little hut one mile east of Claysville.

For twenty years Luellen had lived in the small house in which he died, but in all that time he had never made a friend. He had never told anyone of his past life and nothing was learned of him until his papers were opened and gone through. The papers show that Luellen was a graduate of the Harvard law school and that he was admitted to the New York bar in 1856.

TRIES TO KILL HER BABIES

Children Are Living But Young Mother Slays Herself.

Lancaster, Pa., Oct. 3.—After endeavoring to murder her three small children Mrs. James S. Mann, the young wife of a Cherry Hill farmer, committed suicide. Mrs. Mann, who was only twenty years old, poured carbolic acid into milk and gave it to the children. She then took a dose of the poison herself and went into the field to bid her husband goodby.

Seeing that she was ill he ran for a physician and as he returned, accompanied by the doctor, she placed the muzzle of a gun to her head and pulled the trigger, falling dead. The doctor succeeded in saving the children.

AFTER FOUR YEARS OF MISERY

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md. — "For four years my life was a misery to me. I suffered from irregularities, terrible dragging sensations, extreme nervousness, and that all gone feeling in my stomach. I had given up hope of ever being well when I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Then I felt as though new life had been given me, and I am recommending it to all my friends."—Mrs. W. S. FORD, 2207 W. Franklin St., Baltimore, Md.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has stood the test of years and to-day is more widely and successfully used than any other female remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed.

If you are suffering from any of these ailments, don't give up hope until you have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. She has guided thousands to health, free of charge.

TOWN NEARLY WIPED OUT

Fire Does Damage of $100,000 at Camden, N. Y.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The village of Camden, a thriving farming community ten miles north of Rome, was nearly wiped out by fire. The blaze started in the Whitney House from an unexplained cause and, before it was brought under control twenty buildings, including seven business blocks and ten residences, were reduced to ashes with a loss of $100,000.

The Camden fire department, reinforced by a large detachment of firemen and apparatus from Rome, was handicapped in their efforts by insufficient water pressure.

VIOLETS AGAIN IN BLOOM

Strawberries Also Picked by Farmer Near Irwin, Pa.

Irwin, Pa., Oct. 3.—Farmers are reporting unusual second crop stories in this vicinity. Some of them have the goods to show. Harry Patrick gathered a short quart box of strawberries from the McGraw farm, south of here. In that vicinity nearly all the beds show more or less blossoms.

Violets are blooming in the woods in this vicinity. The recent warm rains and warm days account for the second crops, the farmers say.

DAWSON DEFEATED LEISENRING TEAM.

Haggerty's Pitching Was Gilt Edged Against Champions.

F. JONES DID FINE WORK

Held the Dawson Stars to Five Hits But They Made Two Runs to Leisenring's One—First Southpaw Champs Faced This Season.

The Leisenring team played its last game of the season Saturday afternoon, losing to the Dawson all star team 2 to 1 in nine innings. The Leisenring boys faced a southpaw twirler for the first time this season and did not make much headway against him. He allowed them but five hits and kept those well scattered. F. Jones for the Leisenring boys gave Dawson but five hits, although two runs resulted. The Leisenring team did not have its regular line up but played great ball just the same. Dawson had an all star aggregation with "Spanky" Means at the helm. Both teams played splendid baseball, the fielding being of the gilt edged order. There was no particularly brilliant individual work but the teams played together like veterans. Frank Jones pulled himself out of some dangerous holes at different times and it was principally due to his brainy pitching that the score did not mount higher. Haggerty of Uniontown twirled a masterful game for the Dawson boys, striking out 15 batsmen. Jones fanned 11 and gave two passes.

With the exception of Finerty, Leisenring played its utility men in the outfield, Sweeney and Clark. Captain Barry took first base while "Squaw" Frazier of Trotter was behind the bat.

Leisenring got its only run in the first inning when Getzle's two bagger was followed by a single by F. Jones and one by O'Laughlin, the latter sending the gingery lad across the pan. The Dawson boys scored once in the first and again in the eighth. The score:

High School Eleven Beats Youngwood

In a game long drawn out and devoid of features the High School boys Saturday defeated Youngwood High 22 to 0. It was straight football, with little brilliant work on the part of either side. Youngwood was unable to hold the Connellsville attack and could gain nothing through the local's defense. The visitors were on the defensive most of the time.

Too slow to be interesting, the game was tame. There were frequent interruptions. From what has been seen of the new football rules locally, there is little, if any, improvement over the old style football. The game certainly is not more safer, is no more interesting and where the improvement comes in takes an expert to determine. From the viewpoint of the spectator it is the same old football. Dividing the game into quarters just adds that much more time to be killed, in view of the frequent interruptions from other causes. This feature of the new rules was not designed for small games, but for big contests which frequently go through an entire half without more than a minute or two interruption. In High School games these interruptions are more frequent and of longer duration, with the consequence that the participants get a good bit of breathing space.

Saturday's game afforded but small chance to get a line on the real ability of the local team. Youngwood was so clearly outclassed that the ultimate outcome was never in doubt. Just what the team here will do against a real football team remains to be seen.

The local boys played nicely Saturday although there was too much fumbling. The backs did not handle the ball cleanly at times and more than once the center passed the pigskin to find no one at the receiving end. The feature of the game was in the second quarter when Center, E. DeWitt recovered the ball on Youngwood's 15 yard line on a fumble by the visitors and slipped through the broken field for a touchdown before the opposing side knew what was happening. Both teams were frequently penalized for off side play.

The entire team played well. Captain Scott's punting was a feature. He got several long boots away. Scott did well against a bad wind and more than held his own with his opponent. The entire back field made great gains through the Youngwood defense while the line was practically impregnable. The work of the ends was decidedly creditable. Scott, Llardy, Moser, Bishop, Munk and Marshall, all of whom were in the backfield, made good gains. Llardy kicked two goals and missed two, the wind being largely responsible for the misses.

Several of the players sustained minor injuries. John Rendal of the Youngwood team sustained a broken nose during the first half. This was the most serious accident. Munk twisted his back but soon recovered and could have resumed play. Bishop got some jolts but did not retire, while Baker of Youngwood was hurt and had to leave the field. The line-up:

Connellsville.	Position.	Youngwood.
L. DeWitt	Left Tackle	Harman
Nord	Left Guard	Smith
E. DeWitt	Center	Carnes
L. Buttermore	Right Tackle	Getemy
McCormick	Right End	Bailey
Moser	Quarterback	Lynn
Munk	Left Half	Rendal
Llardy	Right Half	Jones
Scott	Fullback	Lauffer

Substitutions, Lynn for Bryson, Marshall for Munk; Stafford for E. DeWitt, Bishop for Scott, Lynch for Baker, Milliron for Rendal. Touchdowns Scott 3, E. DeWitt. Goals from touchdown, Llard 3. Referee, Herwick, Umpire Dunn. Timer, Cobaugh.

RHEUMATIC POISON.

Rheuma Drives It From the System and Cures Rheumatism.

Ever since A. A. Clarke secured the privilege of handling Rheuma in Connellsville, the sales have been very large.

This is due to the fact that Rheuma really does cure Rheumatism and that it is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism or money back.

It is a quick acting remedy, too. You don't have to wait a long while for results, for Rheuma starts at once to act on the kidneys, liver, bowels and blood, and before 24 hours the poisonous Uric Acid, which causes Rheumatism has begun to pass out of the body through the regular channels.

One 50 cent bottle will prove to any Rheumatic sufferer that Rheuma surely will cure Rheumatism.

For quickest relief from acute indigestion, try English Marbue, 25 cents, at A. A. Clarke's. Mailed by Rheuma Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

TO SIT AS CHIEF JUSTICE.

Associate Judge Harlan of the Supreme Court.

HARLAN TO PRESIDE

Will Sit as Chief Justice Until Taft Makes Appointment.

Washington, Oct 3—Associate Justice John M. Harlan will preside over the United States supreme court when it meets next Monday. He is the senior associate justice and as such will act as chief justice until a successor to the late Chief Justice Fuller is nominated and confirmed.

There has been much talk lately that President Taft may decide to nominate Associate Justice Harlan as chief justice for the remainder of his service on the bench, which must necessarily be brief, with the understanding that ultimately ex Governor Charles E. Hughes will be made chief justice.

Simplicity and Exquisiteness of Color.

And there you have in a line the charm and the keynote of the new hats. To be sure it's a charm the French inspired, and of Parisian origin, for who but the French would dream of creating such daring yet simple shapes, or of using such lovely color tones.

Very large or very small are the hats of this season—and it is a season of predominance for the mushroom brims, the full crown, the dome crown, the black velvet hat, the plumed hat and the hat with scanty embellishment.

But it would never do to tell you the whole secret, that you will like to discover for yourself when you come into our millinery rooms. You will also see many charming hats in our windows.

THE WRIGHT-METZLER SPECIAL $5 HAT.

The dark colors, sometimes all of one shade or with a splash of color, by way of contrast, the Wright-Metzler special, conforming to the new shapes comes forward again, for the fall season. The artistic lines of the hat are made more perfect by the expertly made bow of ribbon. Nimble fingers create the tilt that become so many pretty faces, seasons past.

Graceful Hats at $7.50, $10.00 and Upward.
